

GOOD FELLOW TRULY IS FRIEND IN NEED

He Is Doing His Utmost to Care for Lonesome Little "Kiddies."

MANY WRITE TO HIM One Little Chap Pleads That Father Be Sent Home to Him.

"When a fellow needs a friend," mused the chief of the Good Fellow clan yesterday afternoon as he sat in his office and gazed out over the roofs in the business district and into the cloudy, smoky and laden atmosphere, "is not so much on a day when all the world seems blue, but on the day when all the world seems glad and he alone seems blue."

"Now take a man who is away from home on Christmas. He can go into a big restaurant and get his dinner and then later perhaps go to the theater or to some other place where men and women work hard to make the time pass pleasantly. Nothing makes a man a pessimist so fast as an experience like that—particularly when that home he is thinking of is also the home of a wife and children. Now suppose that man had in addition to the woe of being away from home a situation like this to think of. Suppose that he did not have the money to buy that good meal or the opportunity to be entertained. Suppose that he knew that in that home of his were a wife and children who, perhaps, did have enough to eat, but who did not have the little Christmas remembrances to make the day the time of greatest pleasure in the life of the saddest. Don't you think that that is really the time when a fellow needs a friend?"

Sad Side of Picture. "And then suppose we turn to that wife and children. Daddy instead of being in another town, we will say, has died. The kiddies have no father and the mother, who is alone, has to make tomorrow and while the mother sits crying far into the night the little tot dreams of the father who will not come again. Don't you think that mother needs a friend?"

"And don't think that such a situation does not exist. Here, read this—"

Dear Santa Claus: Mamma says that maybe you won't come to our house this year, but I saw you up town today and I know you won't. I sure hope you will. Mamma says that I mustn't ask you for anything cause we are poor this year and I don't want anything for myself and me. But, please, Santa Claus, can't you bring my papa back to me for a present?

Reaches Destination. And there the childish scrawl had ended. There was no signature, no address. The torn scrap of paper showed snatches of dirt here and there, where, perhaps, tiny fingers had held it down tightly while slowly and laboriously the plea for father was written. The letter had been put into an envelope and on the envelope was written just "Santa Claus." There was no stamp, but the letter had found its way into the hands of Good Fellow—a silent testimonial that surely someone needed a friend.

Good Fellow has a list of some 500 children in almost every situation. The little chap who wanted his papa returned by Santa Claus. In many cases, the breadwinner of the family is dead. In others, the father has left the mother with her little brood to support. In other instances, the father or mother, or both, are helpless invalids, living by the charity of friends or institutions in the city. But institutions do not as a rule contemplate the purchase of Christmas gifts for children. More than that, the parents or institutions are concerned with supplying coal and food.

New Light on Charity. Their cause is a worthy one—but to the little tot a faded scrap of paper does not mean the doll or set of toys so temptingly displayed in the show windows of the downtown merchants. Good Fellow has shed a new light on charity. He has developed a new line of thought on philanthropy. Great men—wealthy men have endowed universities or built memorials or monuments. But what is a university to that child of five who wants a set of blocks, or that little girl who wants a rag doll to which she can confide her childish secrets?

There is no glory, no publicity, no selfish wish to be gained by joining the Good Fellow movement. It is just a chance to make sad hearts glad. A postal card to Good Fellow will bring you the names of one or more children who want something for Christmas. These children will not have a single toy unless Good Fellow cares for them. And women can be just as good Good Fellows as the men, which was an explanation that the royal ruler had to make yesterday to an inquiring friend.

ARRANGE FOR FUNERAL OF MRS. STATHAKOS

The funeral services for Mrs. Athena Stathakos, wife of N. P. Stathakos, a Greek banker of Salt Lake City, who was killed in an automobile accident near Sandy, Sunday, will be held at the Greek church, Mrs. Stathakos was born near Smyrna, Greece, forty-two years ago, and came to Salt Lake about six years ago, where she had been a prominent member of the Greek colony.

The sad fate of Mrs. Stathakos calls to memory the fact that Evangelos Stathakos, a young son of the Greek capitalist, was struck and killed by an automobile in front of the family residence about two years ago.

To Join Order of Good Fellows.

ORDER OF GOOD FELLOWS, Salt Lake City.

I live at No. street. I wish to take care of children.

Please send me a list of names. I prefer them in the part of the city. I inclose stamped and addressed envelope.

Signed

MRS. JENNIE JUNE HUNT, whose funeral was held in the city yesterday afternoon with interment in Mount Olivet.

JENNIE JUNE HUNT LAID AT FINAL REST

Services at the Grave Conducted by the Women of Woodcraft.

Mrs. Jennie June Hunt, who died Saturday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. F. La Com, 1025 Jefferson street, was buried yesterday afternoon in Mount Olivet cemetery. The funeral services were held in the chapel of S. D. Evans at 2 o'clock, the Rev. P. A. Simkin officiating. The Women of Woodcraft, of which order Mrs. Hunt was a member, conducted the services at the grave, with a very impressive burial ritual.

Mrs. Hunt was born in Carlisle, Ind., September 16, 1868. When she was very young her parents moved to Mattoon, Ill., where she was brought up and received her education, graduating from high school and business college. She came to Salt Lake in 1888, where she met and married R. J. Hunt, a building contractor of Buffalo, Mo. Mr. Hunt died June 22, 1907.

Of a high moral character, strong will power and excellent business ability, Mrs. Hunt usually succeeded in her undertakings. She was a member of the Women of Woodcraft for many years and filled every office of the order, being past guardian neighbor at the time of her death.

Having been suffering from throat trouble for many years, she went to California, in October, hoping that the change would improve her health. Seemingly much improved, she returned to Salt Lake to spend Christmas with her daughter, but failed rapidly, and died in less than a week.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. A. F. La Com, 1025 Jefferson street, Salt Lake; one sister, Mrs. M. V. Baker of New York City; two brothers, L. K. Bennett of Canon, Colo., and J. B. Bennett of Canfield, Ark.

FILLING LAST GAP IN THE INTERURBAN

Expected That All Steel on the Salt Lake & Utah Will Be Laid in January.

The only gap in the steel of the Salt Lake & Utah railroad between Salt Lake City and a point two miles south of Pleasant Grove will have been closed by the time the steel is laid on the last lap of the line between Pleasant Grove and Provo. The grade has been finished, and it is expected that all the steel for the line between Salt Lake City and Provo will be in place early in January.

SMOKE NUISANCE IS AGAIN TAKEN UP

At the meeting of the board of governors of the Commercial club yesterday, the smoke nuisance was discussed at length and the following resolution adopted for presentation to the city commission:

Resolved, That the Commercial club respectfully request the city commission to take such action as it may deem proper to prevent the recurrence of the smoke nuisance, which is a nuisance and a public health hazard.

NEW RATES ON COAL GOING INTO EFFECT

Tariff From Utah to Northwest Expected to Be Lowered at Once.

In order to put into immediate effect new coal rates from Utah and southern Wyoming points to eastern Oregon and Washington, decided upon at the conference between officials of the Oregon Short Line and the Oregon-Washington Railway & Navigation company with coal operators at Portland, J. A. Reeves, general freight agent of the Oregon Short Line, yesterday wired the interstate commerce commission at Washington for a dispensation eliminating the usual delay. The rule requires thirty days' notice of a rate change in the state of Washington. The new rates are lower and officials of the railroad company wish to give their Utah and southern Wyoming shippers immediate relief so they will be able to compete.

Requests of this nature are usually granted by the commission upon request, and it is expected that this one will be granted and the rates go into effect at once.

According to Mr. Reeves, who returned Sunday from the conference at Portland, the request for a reduction from the Kirby and Owl Creek districts in northern Wyoming to Spokane and other points in the west was granted. These reductions were given by the Burlington and Northern Pacific roads. The coal men of Utah and southern Wyoming wish to have their rates reduced to compete under the new conditions and asked for an equalization.

Best of all, says that the shippers are completely satisfied with the granted reductions, which run from 25 to 50 cents a ton. The meeting lasted three days. B. Miller, traffic manager of the Oregon-Washington Railway & Navigation company, representing that road. Among the coal men, representing the Kirby and Owl Creek districts, were J. E. Emmett and D. H. Pape of the Central Coal & Coke company; William Gortchak of the Gunn-Quayle Coal company; E. S. Rolapp of Ogden, Wyoming Coal & Coke company. With the exception of Mr. Rolapp, all are Salt Lake.

GOULD OFFICIALS ARE VISITING CITY

Vice President Brown and General Manager Martin Here on Inspection Tour.

E. L. Brown, vice president, and W. S. Martin, general manager of the Denver & Rio Grande railway, came into Salt Lake yesterday afternoon for a private car on a trip of inspection covering all of the company's property between Salt Lake and the coast. The two men, who are visiting the city, made a round of visits to the local offices of the railway company, their inspection covering every detail of operation from roadbed to stations, terminals and clerical systems. They expect to leave on the return trip to the coast before the end of the week.

The inspection made by these officials is in pursuance of the general policy outlined by President E. F. Bush of the company, in which an extensive campaign of improvement and line extension was promised for immediate action. The inspection was made for Mr. Brown and Mr. Martin report satisfactory conditions under existing circumstances, going so far as to make certain recommendations in mind for betterments in pursuance of the plans recently announced.

UTAH IS REGARDED AS HIGH IN SYSTEM

A tribute was paid to the public school system of Utah when Miss Edith A. Lathrop, inspector of rural schools, arrived in Salt Lake yesterday to get ideas with reference to the administrative side of the public schools in the consolidated counties. Miss Lathrop was sent here because the educational system of this state appealed to James E. Lathrop, superintendent of public instruction for Nebraska, as up to date in every respect, when he was here attending the National annual convention of the A. C. Nelson, state superintendent of public instruction, Miss Lathrop is a public school teacher in the city of Omaha, Neb., and has been working on the line between Salt Lake City and Provo. The grade has been finished, and it is expected that all the steel for the line between Salt Lake City and Provo will be in place early in January.

CHRISTMAS NUMBER OF WOOLGROWER OUT

One of the most pretentious numbers of the National Woolgrower, the official magazine of the National Woolgrowers' association, will be published from Salt Lake by S. W. McClure, secretary of the organization, is the Christmas number, which came from the press yesterday. The magazine contains a large number of articles, stories and illustrations of interest to woolgrowers and sheepmen.

The fifteenth annual convention of the association, which will be held here January 15, 16 and 17, received prominent mention, and the magazine contains a list of names of the delegates. An important feature of the issue is the publication of a list of the names of the delegates to the convention, which will be an important one. An important feature of the issue is the publication of a list of the names of the delegates to the convention, which will be an important one.

CHRISTMAS TREES NOT MUCH WANTED

The market for Christmas trees is exceedingly dull in Salt Lake, according to dealers here. The demand for the principal variety, the Norway spruce, is very small. Mr. Evans, accompanied by his cousin, came to Salt Lake almost a week ago with two wagon-loads of the Christmas shrubs, from five to twelve feet in height. For three days they vainly endeavored to dispose of the trees in wholesale lots, but the market was so slow that they were forced to sell them at a loss.

As a last resort Mr. Evans took out a delivery license with the idea of trying to sell enough trees to cover the actual expense of cutting and bringing them to Salt Lake. He is at a loss to know where the trouble lies, whether the market is overstocked or the fashion of using trees at Christmas time is becoming obsolete.

SAYS WIFE SPREAD SLANDER ABOUT HIM

In a suit filed in the district court yesterday, John Stucki seeks divorce from Louise Stucki, on the ground of adultery, alleging that she spreads slander against him in the neighborhood in which he lives. According to the suit, this slander became so widespread that he was called upon by church authorities to disprove it. In addition to a divorce, Stucki seeks possession of a minor child.

Big Attendance Assured.

That the attendance at the National Woolgrowers' association's convention in Salt Lake from the northwest will be large is the opinion of S. W. McClure, secretary of the association, who has returned from Portland, where he attended the Pacific Coast Livestock show. During his visit Mr. McClure boosted for the coming convention whenever possible.

BOND ISSUE MATTER BROKE UP BOARD

Commissioners and Commercial Club Committee Confer; Problems Loom Up.

No decision in regard to the million-dollar bond issue for road building purposes was reached by the county commissioners yesterday at the special meeting called for considering the matter.

A special committee from the Commercial club, consisting of Will G. Farrell, secretary; W. C. Stark, Charles Tyng, Job Lyon and D. O. Riddout, met with the commissioners to urge favorable action on the proposed issue. Members of the committee declared that if the bond election were called the issue would carry beyond a doubt.

The commissioners explained that there were several important phases of the problem that were delaying definite action on their part. In the first place, they said, they were convinced that the plan outlined by R. H. Burrell, the government road expert, could not be followed. Total disinterested experts who have examined this report have advised the commissioners that the plan is not feasible. Many ways were suggested, including the plan of the Burrell plan, which would call for $100,000 more than Burrell's estimate. The commissioners also pointed out that the sentiment throughout the county is exceedingly doubtful in regard to the issue.

After a lengthy discussion, the commissioners told the delegation that a decision would be reached by the first of the year.

CANNOT FIND HUSBAND; WIFE IS SLOWLY DYING

Pathetic Appeal Comes to Postmaster Thomas From Eureka Springs, Arkansas.

Slowly dying from illness, caused chiefly by worry over the absence of her husband, Mrs. Etta Ballard of Eureka Springs, Ark., has been writing to him in Salt Lake and has written a letter to the postmaster urging him to help find the man who has been gone for almost a month. Mrs. Ballard's friends, Mrs. Jennie L. Aiken of Eureka Springs, has also written, saying that in her opinion she would tell him that he still loves him and that she would like to see him.

"When my husband left me he said that he still loved me and was going west to make his money. He said he would be back in a few days. Since then the rest of our lives without worry. He cannot read, so if you locate him I wish you would tell him that I still love him and I want to know if he still loves me. Was the substance of Mrs. Ballard's letter.

Mrs. Ballard is described as a "queen among women" in the letter sent by Mrs. Aiken. She says that Ballard has two daughters living in Salt Lake, but that she has not heard from them for a long time. The postmaster has been unable to find the two daughters of the missing man.

CHICAGO RAILROAD MEETING POSTPONED

Will Be Held on January 7; Prominent Official From Utah to Attend.

Various officials of the Oregon Short Line, including J. A. Reeves, general agent; D. E. Burley, general passenger agent; E. J. Godwin, district freight agent; W. H. Chevers, Union Pacific system general agent at Ogden, and E. J. Shively, general agent at Salt Lake, will attend the annual meeting of the Chicago railroad system, which is being held at the Hotel Sherman in Chicago, Ill., on January 7 and 8.

The meeting was set for Wednesday and the officials planned to leave yesterday, but a dispatch received yesterday morning postponing the conference.

This is the first annual meeting to be held by the Chicago railroad system since the system was organized. Important matters relating to passenger and freight business will be taken up. Nearly every important official of the Union Pacific system will attend.

MRS. MARY B. ALLEN DIES OF INJURIES

Mrs. Mary B. Allen, wife of Samuel Allen, died at the Holy Cross hospital Sunday afternoon from injuries received by falling at her home, No. 4 Meredith avenue, last Saturday.

Mrs. Allen was the daughter of the late Richard and Ann Jenkins and was born in Salt Lake City, June 2, 1852. Mrs. Allen joined the Latter-day Saints in Swansea, Wales, and came to Utah with her husband and family September 18, 1880. Since that time she had been a resident of the Fifteenth ecclesiastical ward, Salt Lake.

Mrs. Allen is survived by her husband, Samuel Allen, one son, Iver John Allen, and two daughters, Laura and Lottie. The funeral arrangements will be delayed until the arrival of the daughters and the announcement will be made later.

CHARLES C. MOORE MAY SPEAK IN CITY

If the plans of the banquet committee of the Commercial club materialize, Charles C. Moore, president of the Pan-American exposition, will be one of the principal speakers at the annual banquet which will be held some time this month.

The committee expects to hear from Mr. Moore some time this week, after which the date of the banquet will be named.

The banquet committee conferred with the board of governors of the club yesterday with reference to the general plan for the annual affair and they were approved by the board. The banquet is now being arranged by the committee in charge.

OFFICIALS INDICTED ON CHARGE OF FRAUD

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 15.—Indictments were returned yesterday against E. R. Walters, county collector of Jefferson county; Howard B. Oursler, director of the bureau of supplies of Pittsburgh; Norman Wynyard, clerk in the tax collector's office; and Harry McKelvey, a special policeman, charging them with conspiracy to defraud the county.

Walters and Oursler have long been prominent in Pittsburgh politics.

Says He Is Wrong Man.

A delinquent young man through the American Legion store in Commercial and First South streets last night and in going through the saloon smashed a plate-glass window. The police arrested John McKelvey, a delinquent, who was charged with the crime. McKelvey insists that he was not near the place. He is being held in jail pending the issuance of a complaint.

Skidmore and J. A. Lamping.

'U' MUSICAL SOCIETY IS TO GIVE GRAND OPERA

Arrangements Are Now Being Completed for Presentation at Downtown Theater.

The University of Utah musical society has finally decided to produce a grand opera, the first of its kind in the history of the musical forces of the state institution.

The opera selected is Leoncavallo's "Pagliacci," and it will be presented at one of the downtown theaters, with full orchestra and costumes.

Professor Hugh W. Dougal will sing the chief baritone role, and Miss Edna Adams will sing the soprano role. The music department hopes to be assisted by the University of Utah orchestra, which is now being organized.

BENEFIT IS EXPECTED FROM LARSEN BLOCK

Plan to Assist Families of Lopez's Victims Proceeding Satisfactorily.

A total of $10,000 is the goal aimed at by those in charge of the benefit for the families of the victims of Rafael Lopez. A meeting of the local committee was held yesterday with committees from the Salt Lake and the Bingham Commercial clubs to perfect the plans for a monster ball.

It was originally intended to hold the ball, which will be preceded by a vaudeville and musical entertainment, in the Auditorium on December 19, but in order that the benefit might be state-wide it was decided to postpone the affair until January.

Aside from the ball tickets, 5000 of which have been issued and which are on sale at various places, subscriptions will be taken in Bingham, Salt Lake and other points. The fund in Bingham, already collected by a committee there, now totals $1000 and the committee believes it will eventually amount to $1000.

In Salt Lake the fund already in hand amounts toward the $1000 mark and it is expected that the committee will have it in a short time.

The benefit tickets will be placed on sale in every city in the state. Medical men have already signified their intention of donating their services and it is expected that several acts from the profession will form a part of the programme preceding the ball.

TESTING DEBATERS AT THE UNIVERSITY

Getting Ready for Discussion With Montana on Question of Immigration.

Lycium debaters of the University of Utah were given a tryout yesterday afternoon for the purpose of having a test in elimination for seating, and representing the state in the forthcoming debate with Montana.

The question is "Resolved, That Immigration into the United States From All Italian, Hellenic and Slavonic Races Should Be Prohibited." The debaters participated in yesterday's tryout were Herbert Maw, Arthur Willard, Edwin Spencer, Clyde Sharp, Jack Green, Claude Gray, J. Heber Wotton, Alexander Anderson, Fredrickson, and J. H. Clavson, Rollo Thomas and R. S. Wilcox. Two others who were unavoidably detained will be heard in the coming debate.

In the first elimination contest yesterday, the judges were Professor D. G. Hunt, C. W. Brown and J. H. Clavson, with Lawrence Nelson acting as timekeeper. The limit to each of the debaters was five minutes, but each was permitted to discuss the question from any angle desired, the idea being to select the best of the company the best ideas.

There is to be another tryout, the date for which has not yet been announced. After the chosen debaters after the elimination process shall have been completed will number three.

PIONEER WOMAN OF UTAH PASSES AWAY

Old Age Is Cause of Death of Mrs. Sarah Snelgrove, Who Came to State With Ox Team in 1866.

Mrs. Sarah Snelgrove, a pioneer woman of Utah who came to the territory by ox team in 1866, died of old age yesterday at her home in this city, 23 Sixth East street.

Mrs. Snelgrove was the mother of Mrs. M. H. Walker of Salt Lake, and had long been a respected resident of this city. She came to the territory by ox team directly from London, England, where she was born on January 16, 1827.

Funeral services will be held at the Eleventh ward chapel this afternoon, commencing at 2 o'clock, Bishop William A. Anderson, officiating. Singing from the ward choir supplying the funeral music. Interment is to be in the City cemetery.

JUNIOR CHOIR SCORES AN IMMENSE SUCCESS

Little Folks Give a Most Delightful Entertainment at St. Mary's Cathedral.

The children of the Junior choir of St. Mary's cathedral scored another success last night in their performance of a Christmas concert. The programme, which was varied and amusing, equally attracted the attention of the boys and girls. The stage was gayly decorated with the Christmas colors—red and green bells, stars and silver and gold tinsel.

The children received many compliments for their work, which was planned and executed by them. The large hall was filled with the parents and friends of the children and the clergy of the cathedral, to whom the programme was complimentary. The entire cast opened the entertainment with a song. The children doing solo numbers were Nora Daniels, Mary Fife, Della Vaughn, and the Junior choir.
